Stainless steel circle rings are recognized for their corrosion resistance, high durability, and robust construction. As per specific requirements, it can be customized in terms of thickness and size. It is ideal for welding applications because it is less susceptible to weld. It is well suited for fabricated or formed applications like surgical tools, pulp, and paper processing equipment, refining equipment, fasteners, and pharmaceutical processing, etc.

It also has excellent low-temperature properties and responds well to hardening by cold working. It is useful food processing equipment, heat exchangers, pressure vessels, chemical containers for transport, etc. SS 316 circle has stress-to-rupture, high creep strength, and tensile strength at high temperatures, and excellent corrosion resistance and strength properties.
